Presidents Message ...

Deborah Roberts
President 2008-2009

What a great program we had last week thank-you to Nikki Sloan, Michelle Mercado, Floyd Gill and Floyd's associate, Amir! I think it's safe to say we all took something new away from Thursday's meeting. With the current economical situation presenting certain stresses many of us could not have expected, this certainly was the perfect time to hear from our experts!

As you know, October is Rotary Vocational Service Month. Here's a more in-depth description of how we as Rotarians should conduct ourselves according to Rotary International:

"DECLARATION OF ROTARIANS IN BUSINESSES AND PROFESSIONS

As a Rotarian engaged in a business or profession, I am expected to:

- 1) consider my vocation to be another opportunity to serve;
- 2) be faithful to the letter and to the spirit of the ethical codes of my vocation, to the laws of my country, and to the moral standards of my community;
- 3) do all in my power to dignify my vocation and to promote the highest ethical standards in my chosen vocation;
- 4) be fair to my employer, employees, associates, competitors, customers, the public, and all those with whom I have a business or professional relationship;
- 5) recognize the honor and respect due to all occupations which are useful to society;
- 6) offer my vocational talents: to provide opportunities for young people, to work for the relief of the special needs of others, and to improve the quality of life in my community;
- 7) adhere to honesty in my advertising and in all representations to the public concerning my business or profession;
- 8) neither seek from nor grant to a fellow Rotarian a privilege or advantage not normally accorded others in a business or professional relationship.

One of the priorities of the RI Strategic Plan is to revitalize the advantage of Rotary's unique vocational basis by:

- Influencing ethical decision making by encouraging Rotarians to join and take leadership roles in business and vocational associations
- Finding new ways to develop vocational skills of others,

The FDIC –short for the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation - is an independent agency of the United States government. The FDIC protects depositors against the loss of their insured deposits if an FDIC-insured bank or savings association fails. FDIC insurance is backed by the full faith and credit of the United States government.

The FDIC insures deposits in most banks and savings associations located in the United States. For simplicity, the term “insured bank” is used to mean any bank or savings association that has FDIC insurance. To check whether a bank or savings association is insured by the FDIC, call toll-free at:

1-877-275-3342
use “Bank Find” at:
www.fdic.gov/deposit

If a depositor’s accounts at one FDIC-insured bank or savings association total $250,000 or less, the deposits are fully insured. A depositor can have more than $250,000 at one insured bank or savings association and still be fully insured provided the accounts meet certain requirements.

FDIC insurance covers all types of deposits received at an insured bank, including deposits in checking, NOW, and savings accounts, money market deposit accounts, and time deposits such as certificates of deposit (CDs). FDIC deposit insurance covers the balance of each depositor’s account, dollar-for-dollar, up to the insurance limit, including principal and any accrued interest through the date of the insured bank’s closing. The FDIC does not insure money invested in stocks, bonds, mutual funds, life insurance policies, annuities, or municipal securities, even if these investments were bought from an insured bank. The FDIC does not insure U.S. Treasury bills, bonds, or notes. These are backed by the full faith and credit of the United States government.

Ownership Categories include: Single Accounts, Certain Retirement Accounts, Joint Accounts, Revocable Trust Accounts, Irrevocable Trust Accounts, Employee Benefit Plan Accounts, Coporation/Partnership/Unincorporated Association Accounts, Government Accounts.

Talk with your banker today for more information regarding your personal FDIC insurance coverage or use the online EDIE calculator provided at the above website address.

Best Regards,
Nikki Sloan

especially people without jobs by fully utilizing Rotarian expertise and experience

- Developing more vocational forums for learning and information exchange to encourage professional development ...”

So, even though Vocational Service is often the “forgotten” Avenue of Service with many Clubs, it really should be an Avenue we spotlight on each and every day. Be it in our own professional lives, or encouraging the development of others, let’s not forget the spirit in which this Avenue of Service was born. Attend the next Vocational Service Meeting to see how you’re unique vocational skills can help others through RCVE!

Hiking the Pacific Crest Trail for polio

By Arnold R. Grahl

Rotary International News -- 16 October 2008

Cris Wallace hiked more than 2,400 miles along the Pacific Crest Trail in the western United States last year before early snowfall ended her drive to complete the entire route.

Determined to finish, the adventurous Rotarian from Lake Elsinore, California, USA, packed up her gear again in August of this year and completed the remaining 263 miles from Snoqualmie Pass, Washington, to the Manning Provincial Park, British Columbia, Canada, as part of a project to raise funds for PolioPlus.

“I decided that I would do a fundraiser to help eradicate polio, to inspire people to give to PolioPlus, and to remind them that together we can accomplish anything, including safeguarding our children and future generations against the poliovirus,” Wallace says.

As part of PCT 4 Polio, a project sponsored by the Rotary Club of Lake Elsinore, Wallace solicited donations to The Rotary Foundation’s PolioPlus Fund, visiting more than two dozen clubs in Southern California before taking a single step on the trail. She conducted television and newspaper interviews, visited even more clubs during her hike, and had a booth at the 2007 RI Convention in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Her efforts raised at least $70,000 for PolioPlus, according to donations through her Web site, www.pct4poliofreeworld.com, and spread awareness of Rotary’s campaign to eradicate polio.

Public Relations Award

The Lake Elsinore Rotary club received an RI Public Relations Award for the project.

Wallace's parents, both Rotarians, are active in the Lake Elsinore club and played a major role in the project. Her father helped with publicity and promotion, while her mother set up many of the logistics of the hike itself, including mail drops of food and clothing.

Wallace first came up with the idea while spending a year in Europe following her graduation from the University of California, Irvine, in 2005. Sitting in an apartment in Scotland, she read about the Pacific Crest Trail in a British outdoor magazine.

"I said, 'Hey, that's in California! That sounds like a great idea,'" Wallace recalls. "So I talked to my parents and decided, after a little bit of conversation, that polio would be a great thing to walk for."

Her decision was cemented when she took part in a polio immunization trip to Kano, Nigeria, in February 2007.

Life changing

"It was life-changing," Wallace recalls. "I met a young child who was just experiencing polio within the last three weeks [of my trip], and it was really heartbreaking because his neighbor would not allow his child to be immunized. That really changed my opinion on everything and definitely reinforced my reasons for doing the walk."

Wallace now lives in Whitefish, Montana, and is a member of the Rotary club there. She works as a case manager at Hope Ranch/Star Meadows Academy, a private boarding school for troubled girls ages 13 to 17.

Her mission has increased her commitment to Rotary.

"I didn't know too much about Rotary until I decided to do this project," Wallace says. "I learned a lot about Rotary. My family is Rotary crazy, and now I am Rotary crazy."
